

PLAINVIEW: Plainview has a new park, its first

By Lewis Griswold

June 27, 2016

Plainview is a low-income community of about 1,400 people west of Strathmore.

The park includes a jungle gym with a tarp, a tot lot and a half-court basketball court.

The Urban Tree Foundation in Visalia did the design and construction management.

The $320,000 project was funded by state Community Housing and Urban Development park funds and Tulare County money.

Self-Help Enterprises wrote the initial grant proposal and the Plainview Mutual Water Co. contributed the land. Other key players included Tulare County Supervisor Allen Ishida, the county and El Quinto Sol de America.